

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
CENTRAL DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

HALEY VIDECKIS AND LAYANA
WHITE,

Plaintiffs,

v.

PERPPERDINE UNIVERSITY, a corporation doing business in California,

Defendant.

) Case No. CV 15-00298 DDP (JCx)

)
)
) ORDER DENYING DEFENDANT
) PEPPERDINE UNIVERSITY'S MOTION TO ) DISMISS THIRD, FOURTH, AND FIFTH
) CAUSES OF ACTION OF THE THIRD
) AMENDED COMPLAINT

) [Dkt. No. 33]

Presently before the Court is Defendant Pepperdine University ("Pepperdine")'s Motion to Dismiss the Third, Fourth and Fifth Causes of Action of the Third Amended Complaint and Prayer for Prejudgment Interest Pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6) ("MTD"). (Dkt. No. 33.) Having considered the parties' submissions and heard oral argument, the Court DENIES the motion and adopts the following order.

///
///
///

1 I. BACKGROUND

2 Plaintiffs in this case are Haley Videckis ("Videckis") and 3 Layana White ("White"). Videckis is a former member of 4 Pepperdine's women's basketball team who transferred to Pepperdine 5 from Arizona State University in July 2013. (Third Amended 6 Complaint ("TAC"), Dkt. No. 31, ¶¶ 1, 47.) White is also a former 7 member of Pepperdine's women's basketball team who transferred to 8 Pepperdine from Arizona State University in January 2014. (TAC ¶¶ 9 2, 47.) Defendant Pepperdine is a university located in 10 California. (Id. ¶ 3.) Pepperdine receives funds from the federal 11 government and from the state of California. (Id.) Ryan 12 Weisenberg ("Coach Ryan") is the head coach of the Pepperdine 13 women's basketball team. (Id. ¶ 7.) Adi Conlogue ("Conlogue") is 14 an athletic academic coordinator of the Pepperdine women's 15 basketball team. (Id. ¶ 13.)

16 Plaintiffs' suit arises out of allegedly intrusive and 17 discriminatory actions that Pepperdine and its employees committed 18 against Plaintiffs on account of Plaintiffs' dating relationship.
19 Plaintiffs allege that, in the spring of 2014, Coach Ryan and 20 others on the staff of the women's basketball team came to the 21 conclusion that Plaintiffs were lesbians and were in a lesbian 22 relationship. (Id. ¶ 17.) Plaintiffs further allege that Coach 23 Ryan and the coaching staff were concerned about the possibility of 24 the relationship causing turmoil within the team. (Id.)
25 Plaintiffs allege that, due to their concerns, Coach Ryan and 26 members of the coaching staff harassed and discriminated against 27 Plaintiffs in an effort to force Plaintiffs to quit the team.
28 (Id.)

1 Plaintiffs allege that, beginning in February 2014, Conlogue
2 would hold individual meetings with each of the Plaintiffs in order
3 to determine Plaintiffs' sexual orientation and their relationship 4 status. (Id. ¶¶ 19-22.) During these meetings Conlogue 5 specifically asked Plaintiffs whether there were any gay or 6 bisexual players on the women's basketball team. (Id. ¶ 21.)
7 Conlogue would ask follow-up questions consisting of, among other 8 things, how close Plaintiffs were, whether they took vacations 9 together, where they slept, whether they pushed their beds 10 together, whether they went on dates, and whether they would live 11 together. (Id. ¶ 22) The questioning lasted at least through June
12 2014. (Id. ¶ 25.)

13 At the end of April, White reported to Coach Ryan that 14 Conlogue was constantly trying to obtain information about White's 15 personal life instead of focusing on White's academics. (Id. ¶ 16 28.) Coach Ryan assured White that he would soon have a coach 17 monitor the players' meetings with Conlogue, as other teammates had 18 also complained about Conlogue not focusing on academics. (Id.)
19 Plaintiffs allege that Coach Ryan did not take any action to stop 20 Conlogue's inquiries into their personal lives. (Id.) Plaintiffs 21 further allege that Conlogue's persistent questioning during study 22 hall deprived them of educational opportunities that other 23 students, similarly situated at Pepperdine, received. (Id.)

24 On April 16, 2014, Coach Ryan held a team leadership meeting 25 where he spoke on the topic of lesbianism. (Id. ¶ 27.) In the 26 meeting, Coach Ryan stated that lesbianism was a big concern for 27 him and for women's basketball, that it was a reason why teams
28 lose, and that it would not be tolerated on the team. (Id.)

1 In May 2014, White met with Coach Ryan to discuss filing an 2 appeal to the NCAA that would allow her to play basketball in her 3 first year as a transfer student. (Id. ¶ 33.) Coach Ryan assured
4 White that he would be starting the process right away. (Id.) 5 Afterwards, however, White received no updates on the progress of 6 the appeal. (Id.) On June 12, 2014 White met with the Pepperdine 7 athletic director, Dr. Steve Potts ("Dr. Potts"), at Pepperdine, 8 and learned that Dr. Potts had not been informed of any appeal on 9 her behalf. (Id. ¶ 36.)

10 White alleges that Dr. Potts offered to process the appeal for 11 her, but that she still has not received a follow up on the status 12 of her appeal. (Id.) White further alleges that another male 13 basketball player who transferred to Pepperdine was approved to 14 play in 2015 immediately after transferring despite the fact that 15 White was admitted to Pepperdine before the male player. (Id.)

16 On June 4, 2014, Videckis complained to the coaching staff 17 that Karissa Scherer ("Scherer"), an athletic trainer, had been 18 asking Videckis inappropriate questions about dating women. (Id.) 19 Additionally, Plaintiffs claim that Scherer falsely accused them of 20 breaking the training room rules. (Id. ¶ 34.) Videckis alleges 21 that Coach Ryan accused her of lying when she complained about the 22 inappropriate questions. (Id.) However, the next day Scherer
23 admitted to Coach Ryan that she did ask Videckis inappropriate 24 questions about her sexual orientation, and Coach Ryan required the 25 athletic trainer to apologize to Videckis. (Id. ¶ 35.) Coach Ryan 26 ignored Scherer's accusations against Videckis for breaking the 27 training room rules. (Id.) A Title IX investigation confirmed 28

1 that Scherer improperly changed the time records so that Videckis
2 and White appeared to arrive late to their training. (Id.)

3 Plaintiffs further allege that, in early July, Conlogue
4 falsely accused Plaintiffs of academic cheating. (Id. ¶ 41.)
5 Plaintiffs allege that there was no evidence to substantiate
6 Conlogue's claim, and the charges were later dropped. (Id.) Later 7 in July, Coach Ryan reached out to two of Plaintiffs' teammates, 8 recommended that the teammates not live with Plaintiffs, and stated 9 that Plaintiffs were bad influences. (Id.) One of those teammates 10 subsequently came forward to Plaintiffs, informing them that Coach 11 Ryan was trying to turn the other players on the team against them.
12 (Id.)

13 On August 26, 2014, Coach Ryan and another member of the 14 coaching staff asked two of Plaintiffs' teammates whether 15 Plaintiffs were dating. (Id. ¶ 42.) When Plaintiffs found out 16 that the coaches had been asking their teammates about Plaintiffs' 17 relationship status, White confronted Coach Ryan about the 18 questioning. (Id.) During this meeting, White was able to confirm 19 that the coaching staff had been asking teammates whether 20 Plaintiffs were dating. (Id.)

21 At some time during the semester, White raised her GPA to a 22 3.0, which under the team rules allowed her to attend study hall 23 for fewer hours. (Id. ¶ 39.) White alleges that Coach Ryan 24 immediately changed the team rule to require a minimum GPA of 3.2 25 instead of 3.0, in an effort to force White to interact with 26 Conlogue in study hall. (Id.)

27 In early September 2014, Conlogue and the coaching staff 28 accused White of being absent from a required study hall and

1 punished White. (Id. ¶ 44.) After the meeting where Coach Ryan
2 and Conlogue issued White's punishment, Conlogue walked up to White 3 with a book White needed and slammed the book on the desk in front 4 of White. (Id.) That night, White attempted to commit suicide.
5 (Id.)

6 In June 2014, Videckis reported to Scherer that she was 7 experiencing pain in her tailbone that she believed stemmed from 8 basketball training, but that the injury would not affect her 9 ability to play basketball. (Id. ¶ 48.) Videckis saw two separate 10 doctors, neither of whom restricted her ability to play basketball.
11 (Id.)

12 On September 9, 2014, Videckis informed Coach Ryan that she 13 would miss practice on September 12 because she was getting tested 14 for cervical cancer. (Id. ¶ 53.) Videckis alleges that Scherer 15 requested her gynecological records, but that she refused to give 16 Pepperdine access because those records were unrelated to her 17 ability to play basketball. (Id. ¶ 54.) Plaintiffs allege that no 18 other women or men on the basketball teams were asked to provide 19 similar medical records. (Id.)

20 On September 16, 2014, Videckis met with Dr. Green at the 21 Pepperdine Health Center, who told her that she was cleared for her 22 condition. (Id. ¶ 56.) After leaving her appointment that day, 23 Videckis received an email from Scherer that stated Videckis would 24 not be cleared for participation unless she provided the athletic 25 medicine center with documentation from a spine specialist relating 26 to her tailbone injury. (Id. ¶ 57.)

27 On September 17, Videckis called the health center to request 28 documentation. (Id.) That same day, Videckis brought her "MRI,

1 diagnosis, and treatment of prescription" to the athletic training 2 room. (Id. ¶ 58.) Afterwards, Videckis received emails from the 3 athletic trainers informing her that the documentation she provided 4 was insufficient, and that she needed to provide them with a 5 diagnosis and treatment plan. (Id. ¶ 59.) Videckis spoke with 6 Coach Ryan, telling him that she had given the trainers all of the 7 documentation the doctor's office had on file for her. (Id. ¶ 61.) 8 Videckis requested Coach Ryan's assistance in speaking with the 9 trainers to clear her for her tailbone injury, but Coach Ryan 10 informed Videckis that he would not help her. (Id.) Videckis 11 replied to the emails, informing the trainers that her diagnosis 12 was in the documentation she had provided, but received no
13 response. (Id.)

14 On September 19, 2014, Videckis met with Dr. Potts, the 15 Pepperdine athletic director, and told him of her concerns
16 regarding unfair treatment by the women's basketball staff. (Id.) 17 Videckis told Dr. Potts that she felt that the coaching staff was 18 trying to keep her and White from playing, and furthermore that 19 they were trying to get Plaintiffs kicked out of the school. (Id.
20 ¶ 64.) Videckis alleges that Dr. Potts was very rude during the 21 meeting and also that he yelled at her for bringing the issue to 22 his attention. (Id.)

23 That same day, Videckis called Coach Ryan and told him that 24 she was very unhappy with the way she had been treated. (Id.) 25 Coach Ryan then told her that she would need to make a decision as 26 to whether she wanted to remain on the team by Sunday. (Id.) 27 Videckis told him that she would need until Monday. (Id.) On 28 Monday, Videckis called Coach Ryan and told him that she needed

1 more time. (Id.) In response, Coach Ryan told her that he needed
2 her decision by 5pm that day; otherwise, he would tell Dr. Potts
3 that Videckis had quit voluntarily. (Id. ¶ 65.)

4 Videckis sent Dr. Potts an email on September 24, stating that 5 she had not made a decision to quit, and that she would like to 6 speak with Dr. Potts later that week when she was back in town.
7 (Id. ¶ 66.) Dr. Potts replied, saying that due to Videckis' 8 concerns, the school had begun an investigation, and that until 9 then, as requested, Videckis would be relieved from activities
10 having to do with the basketball team. (Id. ¶ 67.)

11 On November 7, 2014, Videckis received a letter from the Title 12 IX coordinator. (Id. ¶ 68.) The letter stated that there was 13 insufficient evidence to conclude that harassment or sexual 14 orientation discrimination had occurred, and further that according 15 to the team doctor, Dr. Green had not received the documentation 16 necessary to assess Videckis's fitness to play basketball. (Id.)
17 On December 1, 2014, Videckis sent the university a doctor's note 18 stating that "[i]t is acceptable for [Videckis] to return to 19 basketball without restriction." (Id. ¶ 69.) Neither Videckis nor 20 White were ever cleared to play basketball. (Id.)

21 Plaintiffs previously filed a First Amended Complaint ("FAC") 22 that included a discrimination claim under Title IX. (Dkt. No.
23 11.) Pepperdine moved to dismiss the FAC and argued that Title IX 24 did not cover claims based on sexual orientation discrimination.
25 (Dkt. No. 13.) Plaintiffs, in their opposition to the motion, 26 asked for leave to amend their Title IX cause of action. (Dkt. No.
27 20.) The Court granted Pepperdine's motion, although it noted that 28 it was inclined to find that Title IX did cover the types of

1 actions alleged in the FAC. (Dkt. No. 25.) Plaintiffs have now
2 filed a TAC.

3 Plaintiffs' TAC alleges seven causes of action: (1) violation
4 of the right of privacy under the California Constitution; (2) 5 violation of California Educational Code §§ 220, 66251, and 66270;
6 (3) violation of Title IX - deliberate indifference; (4) violation
7 of Title IX - intentional discrimination; (5) violation of Title IX 8 - retaliation for complaints against discrimination; (6) violation 9 of the Unruh Act, California Civil Code §§ 51 et seq.; and (7)
10 intentional infliction of emotional distress. (See generally TAC.) 11 Pepperdine now moves to dismiss Plaintiffs' third, fourth, and 12 fifth causes of action for failure to state a claim and moves to 13 dismiss the claim for prejudgment interest. (See generally MTD.)

14 II. LEGAL STANDARD

15 A 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss requires the court to determine 16 the sufficiency of the plaintiff's complaint and whether or not it 17 contains a "short and plain statement of the claim showing that the 18 pleader is entitled to relief." Fed. R. Civ. P. 8(a)(2). Under 19 Rule 12(b)(6), a court must (1) construe the complaint in the light 20 most favorable to the plaintiff, and (2) accept all well-pleaded 21 factual allegations as true, as well as all reasonable inferences 22 to be drawn from them. See Sprewell v. Golden State Warriors, 266
23 F.3d 979, 988 (9th Cir. 2001), amended on denial of reh'g, 275 F.3d 24 1187 (9th Cir. 2001); Pareto v. F.D.I.C., 139 F.3d 696, 699 (9th 25 Cir. 1998).

26 In order to survive a 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss, the 27 complaint must "contain sufficient factual matter, accepted as 28 true, to 'state a claim to relief that is plausible on its face.'"

1 Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678 (2009) (quoting Bell Atl.
2 Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 570 (2007)). However, 3 “[t]hreadbare recitals of the elements of a cause of action, 4 supported by mere conclusory statements, do not suffice.” Iqbal, 5 556 U.S. at 678. Dismissal is proper if the complaint “lacks a 6 cognizable legal theory or sufficient facts to support a cognizable 7 legal theory.” Mendondo v. Centinela Hosp. Med. Ctr., 521 F.3d
8 1097, 1104 (9th Cir. 2008); see also Twombly, 550 U.S. at 561-63 9 (dismissal for failure to state a claim does not require the 10 appearance, beyond a doubt, that the plaintiff can prove “no set of 11 facts” in support of its claim that would entitle it to relief). A 12 complaint does not “suffice if it tenders ‘naked assertion[s]’ 13 devoid of ‘further factual enhancement.’” Iqbal, 556 U.S. at 678 14 (quoting Twombly, 550 U.S. at 557). “A claim has facial 15 plausibility when the plaintiff pleads factual content that allows 16 the court to draw the reasonable inference that the defendant is 17 liable for the misconduct alleged.” Id. The Court need not accept 18 as true “legal conclusions merely because they are cast in the form 19 of factual allegations.” Warren v. Fox Family Worldwide, Inc., 328 20 F.3d 1136, 1139 (9th Cir. 2003).

21 III. DISCUSSION

22 Pepperdine advances three main arguments in support of its 23 motion to dismiss Plaintiffs’ three Title IX causes of action: 24 first, that Title IX does not apply to claims based on sexual 25 orientation discrimination; second, that Plaintiffs’ allegations do 26 not support a Title IX claim based on gender stereotype 27 discrimination; and third, that the Title IX claims should be 28 dismissed because they are uncertain and not legally cognizable.

1 (MTD at 5-22, 24-25.) Pepperdine also contends that the fifth 2 cause of action, for retaliation under Title IX, fails because 3 Plaintiffs have not alleged any actionable retaliation. (Id. at 4 22-24.) Finally, Pepperdine moves to dismiss the "claim for 5 prejudgment interest." (Id. at 25.)

6 A. Plaintiffs' Third, Fourth, and Fifth Claims Under Title IX

7 Title IX provides, in relevant part, that "[n]o person in the 8 United States shall, on the basis of sex . . . be subjected to 9 discrimination under any education program or activity receiving 10 Federal financial assistance." 20 U.S.C. § 1681(a). Congress 11 enacted Title IX with the twin objectives of avoiding the use of 12 federal resources to support discriminatory practices and providing 13 individual citizens effective protection against those practices.
14 Gebser v. Lago Vista Indep. Sch. Dist., 524 U.S. 274, 286 (1998).

15 In interpreting Title IX, courts often look to interpretations 16 of Title VII for reference. See, e.g., Franklin v. Gwinnett Cnty.
17 Pub. Sch., 503 U.S. 60, 75 (1992). The Ninth Circuit has held that 18 the legislative history of Title IX "strongly suggests that 19 Congress meant for similar substantive standards to apply under 20 Title IX as had been developed under Title VII." Emeldi v. Univ.
21 of Oregon, 698 F.3d 715, 724 (9th Cir. 2012).

22 Title IX's prohibition of discrimination "on the basis of sex" 23 encompasses both sex - in the biological sense - as well as gender.
24 Schwenk v. Hartford, 204 F.3d 1187, 1202 (9th Cir. 2000).
25 Furthermore, discrimination based on gender stereotypes constitutes 26 discrimination on the basis of sex under Title VII. Price 27 Waterhouse v. Hopkins, 490 U.S. 228, 250-51 (1989); Nichols v.
28 Azteca Rest. Enters., Inc., 256 F.3d 864, 874-75 (9th Cir.

1 2001)(holding that discrimination against either a man or a woman 2 on the basis of gender stereotypes is prohibited). In Nichols, the 3 Ninth Circuit held that a male restaurant employee who was 4 discriminated against at work for, among other things, walking 5 "like a woman" and not having sexual intercourse with a female 6 waitress friend had established an actionable claim for sexual 7 harassment under Title VII. Nichols, 256 F.3d at 874-75.

8 Plaintiffs in this case argue that they have stated an 9 actionable Title IX claim because Title IX covers sexual 10 orientation discrimination, and even if Title IX does not 11 explicitly cover sexual orientation discrimination, the actions 12 alleged in the TAC constitute gender stereotype discrimination.
13 (Opp'n to MTD, Dkt. No. 34, at 6-13.) Further, they argue that the 14 TAC alleges a straightforward claim of discrimination on the basis
15 of sex. (Id.)

16 1. Sexual Orientation Discrimination

17 This Court, in its prior order dismissing in part Plaintiffs' 18 FAC, stated that "the line between discrimination based on gender 19 stereotyping and discrimination based on sexual orientation is 20 blurry, at best." (Dkt. No. 25.) After further briefing and 21 argument, the Court concludes that the distinction is illusory and 22 artificial, and that sexual orientation discrimination is not a 23 category distinct from sex or gender discrimination. Thus, claims 24 of discrimination based on sexual orientation are covered by Title 25 VII and IX, but not as a category of independent claims separate 26 from sex and gender stereotype. Rather, claims of sexual 27 orientation discrimination are gender stereotype or sex 28 discrimination claims.

1 Other courts have acknowledged the difficulty of 2 distinguishing sexual orientation discrimination from 3 discrimination based on sex or gender stereotypes. See, e.g., 4 Prowel v. Wise Bus. Forms, Inc., 579 F.3d 285, 291 (3d Cir. 2009)
5 (stating that "the line between sexual orientation discrimination 6 and discrimination 'because of sex' can be difficult to draw"); 7 Dawson v. Bumble & Bumble, 398 F.3d 211, 217 (2d Cir. 2005) 8 (acknowledging that it would be difficult to determine if an 9 actionable Title VII claim was stated when a plaintiff stated she 10 was discriminated against based on her sex, her failure to conform 11 to gender norms, and her sexual orientation, because "the borders 12 [between these classes] are so imprecise" (alteration in 13 original)); Centola v. Potter, 183 F. Supp. 2d 403, 408 (D. Mass.
14 2002)(acknowledging that "the line between discrimination because 15 of sexual orientation and discrimination because of sex is hardly 16 clear"). Simply put, the line between sex discrimination and 17 sexual orientation discrimination is "difficult to draw" because 18 that line does not exist, save as a lingering and faulty judicial 19 construct.

20 Pepperdine cites to opinions from various federal courts that 21 state categorically that sexual orientation discrimination is not 22 covered under Title IX. (See MTD at 6-14.) However, the Ninth 23 Circuit has held only that "an employee's sexual orientation is 24 irrelevant for purposes of Title VII," and that "[i]t neither 25 provides nor precludes a cause of action for sexual harassment."
26 Rene v. MGM Grand Hotel, Inc., 305 F.3d 1061, 1063 (9th Cir. 2002)

27

28

1 (en banc) (plurality opinion).¹ Furthermore, the cases upon which 2 Pepperdine relies, for the most part, dismiss analogous sexual 3 orientation-based claims in a cursory and conclusory fashion. See, 4 e.g., Johnson v. Eckstrom, No. C-11-2052 EMC, 2011 WL 5975039, at 5 *5 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 29, 2011) (stating, simply, that "neither Title 6 VII nor any other federal law protects against discrimination on 7 the basis of sexual orientation"). The Court rejects the reasoning 8 of these cases, which do not fully evaluate the nature of claims 9 based on sexual orientation discrimination.

10 In sexual orientation discrimination cases, focusing on the 11 actions or appearance of the alleged victim of discrimination 12 rather than the bias of the alleged perpetrator asks the wrong 13 question and compounds the harm. A plaintiff's "actual" sexual 14 orientation is irrelevant to a Title IX or Title VII claim because 15 it is the biased mind of the alleged discriminator that is the 16 focus of the analysis. This is especially true given that 17 sexuality cannot be defined on a homosexual or heterosexual basis; 18 it exists on a continuum. See Kenji Yoshino, The Epistemic 19 Contract of Bisexual Erasure, 52 Stan. L. Rev. 353, 380-81 (2000) 20 (discussing the "Kinsey scale," which conceived of sexual 21 orientation as a continuum with six ratings). It is not the victim 22 of discrimination who should be forced to put his or her sexual 23 orientation on trial. We do not demand of a victim of alleged

24
25 ¹ The concurring judges only joined in the result of the 26 plurality opinion, as the concurrences would have found "actionable 27 gender stereotyping harassment." See Rene, 305 F.3d at 1068
28 (Pregerson, Trott, and Berzon, JJ., concurring); id. at 1069-70 (Graber, J., concurring) (finding facts indistinguishable from Oncale v. Sundowner Offshore Servs., Inc., 532 U.S. 75 (1998), where the Court held same sex harassment was covered by Title VII);
id. at 1070 (Fisher, J., concurring).

1 religious discrimination, "Prove that you are a real Catholic,
2 Mormon, or Jew." Just as it would be absurd to demand that a 3 victim of alleged racial discrimination prove he is black, it is 4 absurd to demand a victim of alleged sex discrimination based on 5 sexual orientation prove she is a lesbian. The contrary view would 6 turn a Title IX trial into a broad inquisition into the personal 7 sexual history of the victim. Such an approach should be precluded 8 as not only highly inflammatory and offensive, but also irrelevant 9 for the purposes of the Title IX discrimination analysis.

10 Therefore, the Court finds that sexual orientation 11 discrimination is a form of sex or gender discrimination, and that 12 the "actual" orientation of the victim is irrelevant. It is 13 impossible to categorically separate "sexual orientation 14 discrimination" from discrimination on the basis of sex or from 15 gender stereotypes; to do so would result in a false choice.
16 Simply put, to allege discrimination on the basis of sexuality is 17 to state a Title IX claim on the basis of sex or gender.

18 2. Gender Stereotype Discrimination

19 It is undisputed that Title IX forbids discrimination on the 20 basis of gender stereotypes. Gender stereotyping is a concept that 21 sweeps broadly. See Price Waterhouse, 490 U.S. at 251 ("[W]e are 22 beyond the day when an employer could evaluate employees by 23 assuming or insisting that they matched the stereotype associated 24 with their group, for '[i]n forbidding employers to discriminate 25 against individuals because of their sex, Congress intended to 26 strike at the entire spectrum of disparate treatment of men and 27 women resulting from sex stereotypes.'" (quoting Los Angeles Dep't 28 of Water & Power v. Manhart, 435 U.S. 702, 707 n.13 (1978)). As

1 discussed above, discrimination based on gender stereotyping 2 encompasses sexual orientation discrimination.

3 Plaintiffs allege here that they were discriminated against 4 because of the Pepperdine women's basketball staff's belief that 5 Plaintiffs were lesbian. Plaintiffs also allege that the staff's 6 stereotypes about lesbians and lesbianism formed the basis of the 7 staff's harassment. (TAC ¶ 19.)

8 The type of sexual orientation discrimination Plaintiffs 9 allege falls under the broader umbrella of gender stereotype 10 discrimination. Stereotypes about lesbianism, and sexuality in 11 general, stem from a person's views about the proper roles of men 12 and women - and the relationships between them. Discrimination 13 based on a perceived failure to conform to a stereotype constitutes 14 actionable discrimination under Title IX. See Centola, 183 F.
15 Supp. 2d at 410 ("Conceivably, a plaintiff who is perceived by his 16 harassers as stereotypically masculine in every way except for his 17 actual or perceived sexual orientation could maintain a Title VII 18 cause of action alleging sexual harassment because of his sex due 19 to his failure to conform with sexual stereotypes about what 'real' 20 men do or don't do.").

21 Here, Plaintiffs allege that they were repeatedly harassed and 22 treated differently from other similarly situated individuals 23 because of their perceived sexual orientation. Coaches, trainers, 24 and support staff repeatedly queried Plaintiffs about their sexual 25 orientation, their private sexual behavior, and their dating lives.
26 Plaintiffs allege that they were told lesbianism would not be 27 tolerated on the women's basketball team. Plaintiffs further 28 allege that they were not cleared to play basketball because of 1 Pepperdine's discriminatory views against lesbianism. If the 2 women's basketball staff in this case had a negative view of 3 lesbians based on lesbians' perceived failure to conform to the 4 staff's views of acceptable female behavior, actions taken on the 5 basis of these negative biases would constitute gender stereotype 6 discrimination. Consequently, Plaintiffs have stated a claim for 7 discrimination because they allege that Pepperdine treated them 8 differently due to their perceived lack of conformity with gender 9 stereotypes, and further that Pepperdine discriminated against them 10 based on stereotypes about lesbianism.

11 3. Sex Discrimination

12 In addition to stating a claim based on gender stereotyping 13 discrimination, Plaintiffs have stated a claim that they were 14 discriminated against because of their sex. Discrimination on the 15 basis of sex can be defined as treating someone differently simply 16 because that person's sex is different from a similarly situated 17 person of the opposite sex. See Manhart, 435 U.S. at 711 (applying 18 the "simple test of whether the evidence shows treatment of a 19 person in a manner which but for that person's sex would be 20 different" (internal quotation marks omitted)); Oncale, 523 U.S. at 21 80 (describing the "critical issue" under Title VII as whether the 22 discrimination would have occurred if the sex of the victim had 23 been different).

24 Here, Plaintiffs allege that they were told that "lesbianism" 25 would not be tolerated on the team. If Plaintiffs had been males 26 dating females, instead of females dating females, they would not 27 have been subjected to the alleged different treatment. Plaintiffs 28 have stated a straightforward claim of sex discrimination under

1 Title IX. Cf. Latta v. Otter, 771 F.3d 456, 480 (9th Cir.
2 2014)(Berzon, J., concurring)(finding same-sex marriage bans were 3 facially discriminatory on the basis of sex because the bans 4 dictated who could marry who based on the sex of the marriage 5 participants).

6 This Court's conclusion is in line with a recent Equal 7 Employment Opportunity Commission ("EEOC") decision holding that 8 sexual orientation discrimination is covered under Title VII, and 9 therefore that the EEOC will treat sexual orientation 10 discrimination claims the same as other sex discrimination claims 11 under Title VII. Baldwin v. Anthony Foxx, Sec'y, Dep't of Transp., 12 EEOC Appeal No. 0120133080, 2015 WL 4397641, at *10, (EEOC July 16, 13 2015) (holding that "allegations of discrimination on the basis of 14 sexual orientation necessarily state a claim of discrimination on 15 the basis of sex"). The EEOC concluded that "[a]n employee could 16 show that the sexual orientation discrimination he or she 17 experienced was sex discrimination because it involved treatment 18 that would not have occurred but for the individual's sex; because 19 it was based on the sex of the person(s) the individual associates 20 with; and/or because it was premised on the fundamental sex 21 stereotype, norm, or expectation that individuals should be 22 attracted only to those of the opposite sex." Id. For these 23 reasons, as well as for the reasons stated in this Order, this 24 Court agrees.

25 B. Plaintiffs' Title IX Retaliation Claim

26 Pepperdine further argues that Plaintiffs' fifth cause of 27 action, for retaliation under Title IX, must be dismissed because 28

1 Plaintiffs have not alleged facts establishing a prima facie case 2 of retaliation.

3 Under Title IX, "a plaintiff who lacks direct evidence of 4 retaliation must first make out a prima facie case of retaliation 5 by showing (a) that he or she was engaged in protected activity, 6 (b) that he or she suffered an adverse action, and (c) that there 7 was a causal link between the two." Emeldi, 698 F.3d at 724. In 8 order to make out a prima facie case, a plaintiff "need only make a 9 minimal threshold showing of retaliation." Id.

10 Here, Plaintiffs have clearly pled a plausible claim for 11 retaliation. Plaintiffs were engaged in protected activity. They 12 complained to the coaching staff and Pepperdine's Title IX 13 coordinator about the harassment they suffered. See Jackson v.
14 Birmingham Bd. of Educ., 544 U.S. 167, 173 (2005) ("Retaliation 15 against a person because that person has complained of sex 16 discrimination is another form of intentional sex discrimination 17 encompassed by Title IX's private cause of action."). Furthermore, 18 Plaintiffs allege various retaliatory actions they experienced as a 19 result of their complaints. (See, e.g., TAC ¶¶ 34-36, 63-69.)
20 They allege that, ultimately, they were forced off the basketball 21 team and lost their scholarships.

22 Pepperdine argues that because Plaintiffs tried to hide their 23 relationship status, they therefore never could have made a 24 complaint about discrimination. This argument is without merit.
25 Plaintiffs clearly allege that they complained to the coaching 26 staff and school officials about the intrusive questioning and 27 harassment to which they were subjected. The fact that Plaintiffs 28 may never have explicitly told school officials that they were

1 dating is irrelevant to whether they complained that they were 2 being harassed. Again, requiring that Plaintiffs disclose their 3 sexual orientation or relationship status improperly focuses the 4 inquiry on the status of the victim rather than the bias of the 5 alleged harasser, and imposes a burden that Title IX does not 6 contemplate.

7 C. Uncertainty of Plaintiffs' Third, Fourth, and Fifth Causes
8 of Action

9 Pepperdine asserts that because Plaintiffs have chosen to 10 plead their Title IX theories under three separate causes of 11 action, this format renders Plaintiffs' Title IX claims "uncertain 12 and not legally cognizable." (See MTD at 24-25.) Pepperdine's 13 argument is unavailing in light of the liberal pleading standards 14 of Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 8. Although Plaintiffs could 15 have pled their Title IX claims as a single cause of action, the 16 fact that they included them as three separate causes of action 17 does not require dismissal. Under Rule 8, all that is required is 18 that the complaint must contain "a short and plain statement of the 19 claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief." Fed. R.
20 Civ. P. 8(a)(2). In fact, Rule 8 expressly states that "[n]o 21 technical form is required" for pleadings, and further that "[a] 22 party may set out 2 or more statements of a claim or defense 23 alternatively or hypothetically, either in a single count or 24 defense or in separate ones." Fed. R. Civ. P. 8(d). Accordingly, 25 Plaintiffs' third, fourth, and fifth claims are not "legally 26 uncognizable" or "uncertain," and cannot be dismissed for such a 27 reason.

28 ///

1 D. Prayer for Prejudgment Interest

2 Pepperdine also moves to dismiss Plaintiffs' prayer for 3 prejudgment interest. Strictly speaking, Plaintiffs' request for 4 prejudgment interest is contained in their "Relief Requested" 5 rather than pled as a separate claim, and thus a motion to dismiss 6 under Rule 12(b)(6) is the improper vehicle to use in arguing 7 against prejudgment interest. Instead, Pepperdine should have 8 moved to strike the prayer for prejudgment interest. See Fed. R.
9 Civ. P. 12(f). The Court will treat Pepperdine's motion as a 10 motion to strike with respect to the prayer for prejudgment 11 interest.

12 Plaintiffs argue that, at this stage of the proceedings, 13 because the nature of their claims remain "in flux," the Court 14 should defer ruling on the issue of prejudgment interest until a 15 later point in the case. Plaintiffs have not responded to 16 Pepperdine's substantive arguments.

17 California Civil Code Sections 3287 and 3288 govern awards of 18 prejudgment interest. Pepperdine contends that Plaintiffs are not 19 entitled to prejudgment interest on their state law claims because 20 the damages involved are for "the intangible, noneconomic aspects 21 of mental and emotional injury." Greater Westchester Homeowners 22 Assn. v. City of Los Angeles, 26 Cal. 3d 86, 103 (1979). However, 23 the damages involved in the present case may go beyond mental and 24 emotional injury. Plaintiffs allege that, due to Pepperdine's 25 actions, Plaintiffs were forced off the women's basketball team, 26 had their scholarships revoked, and withdrew from the school. (TAC 27 ¶¶ 76-79, 136.) Damages from these types of injuries may be 28 tangible and economic, and thus eligible for prejudgment interest

1 under Section 3288. Accordingly, the request for prejudgment 2 interest will not be stricken.

3 IV. CONCLUSION

4 For the foregoing reasons, the Court DENIES Pepperdine's 5 motion to dismiss Plaintiffs' third, fourth, and fifth causes of 6 action and prayer for prejudgment interest.

7

8

9 IT IS SO ORDERED.

10

11

12 Dated: December 14, 2015

13

14

15

16

17

18

19

20

21

22

23

24

25

26

27

28

DEAN D. PREGERSON
United States District Judge