INTRODUCTION

This case involves a dispute between the Escondido Union School District (EUSD) and two of its teachers over a religious accommodation they seek to a local district policy. At issue is the district’s antidiscrimination policy regarding transgender and gender non-conforming students, which Plaintiffs Elizabeth Mirabelli and Lori Ann West allege violates their First Amendment rights to free speech and free exercise. Plaintiffs have made clear that they do not challenge any state law in their lawsuit and expressly allege that no state law required EUSD to adopt the challenged policy. However, responding to this Court’s directive to amend their complaint to add California Attorney General Rob Bonta as a defendant, Plaintiffs have now tried to muddy the waters with factual allegations about state-level actions in an effort to shoehorn the Attorney General into this local dispute. This effort is not enough, as Plaintiffs have failed to allege a justiciable controversy against the Attorney General in what, ultimately, just remains a case between them and EUSD.

Specifically, the Attorney General moves to dismiss the first amended complaint because Plaintiffs have failed to meet the constitutional requirements for standing to bring suit against the Attorney General. Plaintiffs have alleged no past injury traceable to the Attorney General, as they allege no state involvement in the adoption or enforcement of EUSD’s policy. Plaintiffs have also failed to allege any actual, ongoing injury attributable to the Attorney General during the course of this litigation. While they suggest the Attorney General is a “driving force” behind EUSD’s policy and point to numerous recent actions he has taken statewide to protect transgender students, they ignore the simple fact that the challenged Policy is not required by state law. The Attorney General has never suggested it is, nor has he threatened EUSD if it did not enforce its own policy. And, even if he had, any suggestion by Plaintiffs that this caused them harm—after they had already secured a preliminary injunction against EUSD—or that it will somehow lead

1 EUSD to defy future Court orders is purely speculative, and thus insufficient to 2 confer standing.

3 Finally, Plaintiffs' claims are barred by Eleventh Amendment sovereign 4 immunity, which the Attorney General enjoys here because he has no direct 5 connection to enforcement of any state law at issue in this case.

6 For these reasons, the Court should grant the motion and dismiss all claims 7 against Attorney General Bonta.

8 BACKGROUND

9 I. FACTUAL BACKGROUND

10 Plaintiffs Elizabeth Mirabelli and Lori Ann West (Plaintiffs) are middle school 11 teachers in the Escondido Union School District (EUSD). ECF No. 80 (First 12 Amended Complaint or FAC) at ¶¶ 20-21. In August 2020, EUSD administrators 13 adopted a district policy regarding discrimination on the basis of gender identity.
14 Id. ¶¶ 118-119. That policy, known as AR 5145.3, requires all EUSD staff to use 15 gender non-conforming students' preferred pronouns and names. Id. ¶ 119; see 16 FAC, Ex. 3 (Policy). It also, among other requirements, prohibits staff from 17 disclosing a gender non-conforming student's status "to individuals who do not 18 have a legitimate need for the information" without the student's consent. Id. ¶ 19 132, Ex. 3 at 5 (EUSD "shall only disclose the information to others with the 20 student's prior consent, except when the disclosure is otherwise required by law or 21 when the district has compelling evidence that disclosure is necessary to preserve 22 the student's physical or mental well-being."); Ex. 4 at 7.

23 Mirabelli and West allege a common religious belief that "God immutably 24 creates each person as male or female" and that "rejection of one's biological sex is 25 a rejection of the image of God within that person." Id. at ¶¶ 96, 104. They "also 26 believe that they cannot affirm as true those ideas and concepts that they believe are 27 not true, nor can they aid and abet the deception of others." Id. at ¶ 97. They also 28 share a religious belief "that the parent-child relationship was ordained by God and

1 that parents have the ultimate right and responsibility to care for and guide their 2 children.” Id. at ¶¶ 83, 92.

3 After the Policy was announced, Mirabelli and West requested a religious 4 accommodation from EUSD regarding (1) the Policy’s requirement that they use 5 students’ preferred names and pronouns, and (2) the prohibition on disclosure of 6 this information to the students’ parents or guardians. Id. at ¶¶ 135, 180-187.

7 EUSD and Plaintiffs then began a religious accommodation process that included 8 multiple meetings and follow-up communications between Mirabelli, West, their 9 lawyers, a mediator, and EUSD staff and counsel. Id. at ¶¶ 189-191, 202-208.

10 Ultimately, EUSD and Plaintiffs agreed to an accommodation on Plaintiffs’ request 11 regarding use of students’ preferred names and pronouns. Id. at ¶ 210. But they 12 did not reach an agreement on an accommodation regarding disclosure of students’ 13 gender non-conforming status to parents. Id. at ¶¶ 211, 218.

14 II. PROCEDURAL BACKGROUND

15 In April 2023, Plaintiffs filed suit against various EUSD defendants, the 16 California Department of Education, the California Superintendent of Public 17 Instruction, and members of the California State Board of Education. ECF No 1 at 18 ¶¶ 23-46. Plaintiffs’ complaint alleged that the Policy violates Plaintiffs’ First 19 Amendment rights to free speech and free exercise. Id. at ¶¶ 217-280. Plaintiffs 20 also sought a declaration that the “conclusions” in a “Frequently Asked Questions” 21 guidance webpage posted by the California Department of Education (and referred 22 to as the “FAQ page”) “violate the U.S. Constitution.” See id. at ¶¶ 189, 285. The 23 complaint did not specify which Constitutional provision the FAQ page violated.
24 Id. at ¶ 285.

25 In September 2023, the Court granted Plaintiffs’ motion for preliminary 26 injunction and denied motions to dismiss filed by the defendants. ECF No. 42. The 27 California Department of Education then filed a motion for judgment on the 28 pleadings. ECF No. 53.

ARGUMENT

I. PLAINTIFFS LACK CONSTITUTIONAL STANDING TO SUE THE ATTORNEY GENERAL, AND THUS THE COURT LACKS SUBJECT MATTER JURISDICTION

Plaintiffs’ claims against the Attorney General should be dismissed in their entirety because Plaintiffs have failed to allege any past, present or future concrete injury traceable to the Attorney General sufficient to confer standing to sue him.

Article III of the United States Constitution confines the jurisdiction of federal courts “to the resolution of cases and controversies.” Valley Forge Christian Coll. v. Ams. United for Separation of Church & State, 454 U.S. 464, 471 (1982). To establish standing necessary for a justiciable case or controversy, a plaintiff must demonstrate: (1) a concrete and particularized injury in fact; (2) a causal connection between the injury and defendant’s conduct; and (3) a likelihood that the injury will be redressed by a favorable decision. Virginia House of Delegates v. Bethune-Hill, 139 S. Ct. 1945, 1950 (2019); Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 560-61 (1992). Here, Plaintiffs past injuries are not traceable to the Attorney General since they involve a purely local dispute between Plaintiffs and EUSD over a policy that Plaintiffs concede is not required by state law. In addition, any allegations of future harm by the Attorney General based on his actions to enforce state law against other school districts with categorically different forced-disclosure policies are simply too hypothetical and speculative to establish a credible risk of imminent harm.

A. Plaintiffs Have Failed to Allege Any Past Injury Traceable to the Attorney General

The Attorney General is aware the Court has determined that Plaintiffs have alleged an actual, concrete, and particularized injury in that they requested and were partially denied a religious accommodation from the Policy adopted by EUSD. See FAC ¶¶ 184, 187, 189-191; 202-215; see also ECF No. 42 at p. 35:16-19 (Plaintiffs “are compelled to violate the parent’s rights by forcing plaintiffs to conceal

1 information they feel is critical for the welfare of their students – violating 2 plaintiffs’ religious beliefs”). But whatever injury stems from the Policy is not 3 traceable to the Attorney General.

4 To satisfy the causality element for constitutional standing, Plaintiffs must 5 show that their injury is “causally linked or fairly traceable” to the Attorney 6 General’s alleged misconduct. Wash. Env’t Council v. Bellon, 732 F.3d 1131, 1142 7 (9th Cir. 2013). “The line of causation between the defendant’s action and the 8 plaintiff’s harm must be more than attenuated.” Id. (citations and quotes omitted).

9 As alleged, EUSD administrators alone enacted the challenged Policy in 2020, 10 alone provided staff trainings regarding its interpretation, and alone drafted internal 11 Q&A guidance and implementing forms. FAC ¶¶ 118-130, 133-136, 152, 155-156.
12 The district alone fielded complaints of Policy violations and alone negotiated with 13 Plaintiffs over a possible religious accommodation from the Policy’s requirements.
14 Id. ¶¶ 120, 189-191, 202-211. Notably, Plaintiffs have not alleged that the Attorney 15 General has had any involvement in EUSD’s adoption or enforcement of the Policy, 16 at any stage, whether against Plaintiffs or others. This point is dispositive for 17 standing purposes because Plaintiffs’ alleged constitutional injuries, as they 18 describe and articulate them in their Complaint, flow entirely and exclusively from 19 EUSD’s Policy.

20 Perhaps Plaintiffs theoretically could have alleged an injury traceable to the 21 Attorney General had the Attorney General actively required EUSD to adopt the 22 Policy as a matter of state law in 2020. See e.g., LSO, Ltd. v. Stroh, 205 F.3d 1146 23 (9th Cir. 2000) (plaintiff alleged sufficient injury to name the California 24 Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control as the defendant in suit challenging 25 state regulation based on the agency’s enforcement of the regulation against its 26 third-party licensees). In fact, EUSD essentially made this argument when it 27 previously submitted to the Court that the California Department of Education’s 28 FAQ guidance mandated adoption of its Policy challenged in this lawsuit. See ECF

1 No. 16 at 5-7 (asserting the Policy is “consistent” with various state laws, but 2 “require[d]” by the guidance); ECF No. 42 at 9, 31.

3 But Plaintiffs have made no such allegation and, more importantly, such 4 arguments are unequivocally wrong. Plaintiffs, the Attorney General, and the 5 California Department of Education and State Board of Education defendants all 6 agree that EUSD’s current Policy is not required by any California law, whether 7 enforced by the Attorney General or other State officials. See FAC ¶¶ 219 (“As 8 stated above, it is clear that EUSD’s Parental Exclusion Policy, as documented in 9 AR 5145.3, is not required by any provision in California law”), 247, 283. This 10 includes the California Department of Education’s 2016 legal advisory and FAQs 11 guidance, which is the only state “policy” identified in the lawsuit and which, as a 12 matter of undisputed state law, is non-binding. See Cal. Educ. Code § 33308.5 (all 13 Department of Education guidance is non-binding); FAC ¶¶ 131, 192, 221 (alleging 14 the guidance is non-binding); see also ECF No. 53 at 10 (State Board of Education 15 and California Department of Education stating that the FAQs are non-binding and 16 “do not require Plaintiffs or EUSD to do anything”). And, as the complaint makes 17 clear, because no state law requires the Policy, no state law is challenged in the 18 lawsuit. Id. ¶ 219.

19 To be clear, the Attorney General has never previously taken the position, 20 whether in legal filings or public statements, that the California Department of 21 Education’s FAQ guidance is binding. Nor did the Attorney General sue another 22 school district for failing to “follow” the guidance, despite Plaintiffs’ assertion to 23 the contrary. See FAC ¶¶ 240, 247. In People v. Chino Valley Unified School
24 District (Chino Valley), No. CIV SB 2317301 (Cal. Super. Ct., San Bernardino 25 County, Aug. 28, 2023), the Attorney General sued the school district for adopting 26 a “forced-disclosure” policy on the basis that the policy violated California 27 constitutional and statutory protections for student privacy, equal protection, and 28 against discrimination. Request for Judicial Notice (RJN) Ex. 1 at ¶¶ 109-129. The 1 FAQ guidance did not serve as a basis for those legal claims. Rather, that lawsuit 2 references the California Department of Education’s guidance in a single 3 background allegation related to the general risks of discrimination and harassment 4 experienced by transgender and gender non-conforming students. Id. at ¶ 37. In 5 that allegation, the Attorney General expressly stated the guidance was a 6 recommendation only: “[r]ecognizing these risks, the California Department of 7 Education has issued statewide guidance since at least 2014, generally 8 recommending that school officials and staff members not ‘out’ students to their 9 parents or guardians against the students’ wishes.” Id. (emphasis added). Any 10 allegation by Plaintiffs that the Attorney General sued Chino Valley Unified School 11 District for failing to follow the FAQ guidance—or any inference that FAQ is 12 enforceable state law binding on EUSD—is demonstrably false on its face and must 13 be disregarded. Steckman v. Hart Brewing, Inc., 143 F.3d 1293, 1295–96 (9th Cir.

14 1998) (courts “are not required to accept as true conclusory allegations which are 15 contradicted by documents referred to in the complaint”). Again, this is a 16 dispositive point for the standing analysis because the only purported connection 17 between state law and EUSD’s injury-causing Policy is premised on the erroneous 18 legal assumption—advanced by defendant EUSD and directly refuted by 19 allegations in the complaint—that the FAQs are binding state law.<sup>1</sup>

20 Ultimately, Plaintiffs’ alleged injury is based on the sole ground that the 21 Policy adopted in 2020 violates their First Amendment rights to free speech and

22 <sup>1</sup> Moreover, such an inference seems to rest on a mistaken understanding that 23 school districts face only two choices: to “follow” the FAQ page or violate state 24 law. The reality is that there is not only one policy on this topic that complies with 25 state law. As noted by the Attorney General in recent guidance, local districts have 26 the flexibility under state law to craft individually tailored policies to account for 27 multiple concerns and needs, with the understanding that there are legal guideposts 28 in state law related to privacy, equality, and discrimination that schools must abide by. RJN Ex. 5 at 2 (noting “numerous feasible and effective alternatives to forced disclosure policies exist”). For that reason, the FAQ page itself does not mandate a specific policy, linking instead to a “model” policy it states was developed by a third party and that the California Department of Education merely “recommended [be] reviewed” by school districts. RJN Ex. 2 at 2; RJN Ex. 3 at 10 (noting the policy “can be adopted”).

1 free exercise. FAC ¶¶ 217-280. The Policy EUSD chose to adopt was not 2 mandated by state law, nor did the Attorney General have any involvement in its 3 adoption or enforcement. Because Plaintiffs' past injury is not traceable to any 4 action by the Attorney General or any challenged state law for which the Attorney 5 General has the responsibility to enforce, it is insufficient to confer standing against 6 him here.

7 B. Plaintiffs Have Failed to Allege Any Injury Traceable to 8 Attorney General Bonta Based on His Enforcement of State Law

9 To the extent that Plaintiffs now seek to add the Attorney General to their 10 dispute with EUSD on the theory that he is a "driving force" behind EUSD's 11 defense of its Policy or that he is exerting pressure on EUSD by threatening to sue 12 the district if it does not maintain its Policy, this is both factually unsupported and 13 legally insufficient. As explained below, any such allegations rely on pure 14 speculation and are insufficient to demonstrate a direct causal connection between 15 the Attorney General's conduct and any hypothetical injury to Plaintiffs, and thus 16 cannot establish standing to sue the Attorney General.

17 The Ninth Circuit's decision in LSO squarely addresses the question of 18 whether and when a plaintiff has standing to sue a state agency that is the alleged 19 "driving force" behind a third party's action that directly caused the plaintiff's 20 injury. See LSO, Ltd. v. Stroh, 205 F.3d 1146. In LSO, the Court allowed an 21 organization seeking to hold an erotic art and trade show to sue the California 22 Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control based on that agency's alleged 23 attempted to prevent its licensees (a convention center and hotels) from hosting the 24 art exhibition on their premises. Id. at 1150. It was undisputed that a state 25 regulation prohibited the exhibition from occurring on the licensees' premises. Id.
26 at 1151. Ahead of the exhibition, agency officials took a number of actions to 27 threaten enforcement of this regulation against its licensees, including sending 28 targeted letters to and meeting with the affected licensees, and repeatedly speaking

1 with the convention center director about the exhibition and warning that the 2 convention center “faced a threat of disciplinary action” if it allowed the art
3 exhibition to proceed. Id. When the convention center then barred the art 4 exhibition based on fear of agency sanctions, plaintiff sued the agency, claiming the 5 regulation violated its First Amendment rights. LSO, 205 F.3d at 1152, 1158. On 6 appeal, the Ninth Circuit rejected the agency’s argument that it had not injured 7 plaintiff, holding that the plaintiff had sufficiently alleged a particularized injury 8 stemming from the agency’s actions because the agency censored plaintiff’s 9 exhibition “by applying pressure and threats to a necessary conduit: the licensees 10 whose facilities LSO must rent in order to hold its shows.” Id. at 1153.

11 Here, Plaintiffs’ complaint fails to allege the type of direct, causal connection 12 between the injury-causing conduct of EUSD and the actions of the Attorney 13 General that LSO requires for standing. Plaintiffs have identified three actions by 14 the Attorney General: (1) the enforcement action in the Chino Valley case, FAC 15 ¶¶ 240-241, RJN Ex. 1; (2) the issuance of two guidance documents to school 16 districts statewide, FAC ¶¶ 243-244, RJN Exs. 4, 5; and (3) a conversation with 17 EUSD in which lawyers from the Attorney General’s office allegedly stated that 18 they “would consider” enforcement against EUSD “if [it] did not protect the gender 19 identity of students when the student requested it.” FAC ¶ 245. But each of these 20 factual allegations, on their face, fail to demonstrate what Plaintiffs must establish 21 for standing—that the Attorney General has conveyed, through words or action, 22 that the Policy challenged in this case is mandatory, and EUSD’s failure to enforce 23 it will subject the school district to punitive enforcement such that the Attorney 24 General can be held liable for Plaintiffs’ alleged injuries.

25 1. EUSD’s Policy is not required under state law, and the 26 Attorney General has never threatened EUSD with 27 enforcement should EUSD fail to enforce its Policy

27 Critically, the Attorney General has never suggested to EUSD—and Plaintiffs 28 have not so alleged—that the district must maintain the challenged Policy or face

1 enforcement for violating state law. As explained above, Plaintiffs have explicitly 2 (and correctly) alleged in their complaint that EUSD’s Policy is not required by 3 state law. See FAC ¶¶ 219, 247, 283. To the contrary, the Policy is not the only 4 possible gender identity policy that complies with state law. In fact, the Attorney 5 General has made clear in the guidance documents that Plaintiffs themselves cite 6 that school districts have the flexibility in drafting policies around student gender 7 identity to balance multiple interests at issue, including medical needs of students.
8 RJN Ex. 5 at 2. This fact stands in stark contrast to LSO, where there was only one 9 way to comply with state law (i.e., do not display erotic art) and where agency 10 officials specifically told licensees in no uncertain terms that plaintiffs’ intended art 11 exhibit was unlawful and would lead to sanctions against the licensees if they 12 allowed the event to take place. LSO, 205 F.3d at 1153-54.

13 This explains why none of the actions that Plaintiffs have highlighted here rise 14 to the level of a threat and are not comparable to the regulatory threats at issue in 15 LSO. For instance, unlike the targeted letters sent to the involved licensees after 16 their meeting with agency officials in LSO, the guidance documents here contained 17 general information sent to all school districts in California regarding the legality 18 forced-disclosure policies, which are a categorically different type of policy than 19 EUSD’s Policy.<sup>2</sup> RJN Ex. 4 (Sept. 26, 2023 letter titled “Guidance Regarding 20 Forced Disclosure Policies Concerning Gender Identity”); RJN Ex. 5 (“Forced 21 Disclosure Policies re: Transgender and Gender Nonconforming Students”). While 22 one guidance letter did refer to this lawsuit, it did so to distinguish this matter from 23 <sup>2</sup> While EUSD’s Policy has a default position of protecting a student’s non-24 conforming gender identity from disclosure, a forced-disclosure policy (the impetus 25 for the Attorney General’s guidance) has the opposite default position of requiring 26 school staff to notify a student’s parents and guardians whenever a student requests 27 to use a pronoun or name different than that on their birth certificate or official 28 records, without the student’s consent and regardless of the impact on a student’s health or well-being. See FAC ¶ 239; RJN Ex. 5 at 1. As a result, forced-disclosure policies necessarily implicate different legal concerns than student-protective policies—namely infringement of privacy, equal protection and antidiscrimination protections—and do so for all gender non-conforming students within those districts.

1 the forced-disclosure policy in Chino Valley—and not to suggest that EUSD or any 2 other school district would face enforcement if they failed to adopt and enforce a 3 policy like EUSD’s. See RJN Ex. 4 at 2.

4 As for the conversation between EUSD and the Attorney General’s office, 5 Plaintiffs effectively concede the purpose of the call was “to explain the same” 6 information as the legal guidance to EUSD. See FAC ¶ 245. During that call, 7 however, they allege lawyers for the Attorney General stated that the Attorney 8 General “would consider” enforcement against EUSD if it “did not protect the 9 gender identity of students when the student requested it.” Id. But the statements 10 attributed to the Attorney General’s office are at most vague and hypothetical: 11 “considering” enforcement is vastly different from pursuing it. And, when read in 12 context with the guidance the call was describing, such statements can be 13 understood as conveying that the Attorney General might enforce state law if EUSD 14 were to adopt a forced-disclosure policy—which EUSD has not shown any 15 intention to do. Again, unlike the clear statements in LSO, nothing in the content of 16 this interaction gives any indication that EUSD’s challenged Policy was mandatory 17 under state law or that the district would be subject to enforcement for failing to 18 enforce this specific Policy. Without such clear and concrete factual allegations 19 that establish actual conduct by the Attorney General that is responsible for EUSD 20 continuing to enforce its allegedly injurious Policy, as required by LSO, Plaintiffs’ 21 allegations amount to nothing more than vague and conditional allusions to 22 potential future enforcement of state law, predicated on a hypothetical change in 23 EUSD policy.<sup>3</sup>

24 2. Plaintiffs have not alleged any injury caused by the 25 Attorney General’s alleged actions, and any such inferred 26 injury is purely speculative

27 <sup>3</sup> Moreover, there is no allegation that EUSD could not challenge state law on 28 its own should the Attorney General threaten to enforce state law against it—a critical point in LSO. See LSO, 205 F.3d at 1154 (finding persuasive that none of the state agency’s licensees “would be likely to litigate this issue”).

1 Even if the Attorney General’s alleged actions could be construed as a threat 2 to EUSD, Plaintiffs have not alleged (and cannot show) that EUSD has heeded or 3 will heed the threat, causing Plaintiffs injury. Thus, any purported injury to 4 Plaintiffs based on the Attorney General’s alleged actions is purely speculative.

5 The Supreme Court has long cautioned that, when a plaintiff’s asserted injury 6 arises from the government’s regulation of a third party, standing is “substantially 7 more difficult to establish.” Lujan, 504 U.S. at 562 (quotation marks and citation
8 omitted). This is because, in this circumstance, causation “hinge[s] on the response 9 of the regulated” and thus the elements of standing depend on the choices of 10 independent actors. Id. In LSO, the Ninth Circuit found that the plaintiff had 11 surmounted this causation hurdle and had properly alleged an injury directly 12 traceable to the state agency because the facts clearly showed the agency’s threats 13 caused the convention center to take action in compliance with the threat, barring 14 plaintiff’s art exhibition and effectively choking its ability to hold the event. LSO, 15 205 F.3d at 1153.

16 No such injury directly attributable to the Attorney General’s actions has been 17 alleged here. It is unclear what harm could even be alleged. EUSD defended its 18 Policy in mediation and then repeatedly in motions before the Court long before the 19 Attorney General issued a single piece of guidance or took action in Chino Valley.
20 ECF Nos. 16, 17. To the extent Plaintiffs ask this Court to infer from the 21 allegations that EUSD’s continued defense of the Policy in litigation since 22 September 2023 is attributable to the Attorney General, such an inference is rank 23 speculation. There are countless reasons a party may choose to continue litigating 24 after an initial adverse order, not least of which here may be the district’s own 25 desire to enforce its Policy.

26 Moreover, there is no indication (or allegation even) that the Attorney 27 General’s forced-disclosure guidance or conversation with EUSD will at some 28 unspecified time in the future cause EUSD to defy the Court’s preliminary

1 injunction order or a final judgment. Should Plaintiffs prevail on their free exercise
2 claim, the starting assumption must be that EUSD will comply with the Court's 3 decision. Plaintiffs have not alleged otherwise, nor has EUSD given any indication 4 in any submission before this Court that it does not intend to comply with Court 5 orders. It is doubly speculative and ignores basic principles of federalism to 6 assume that any such defiance would be attributable to the Attorney General, 7 particularly given that federal constitutional rights are supreme to state law.<sup>4</sup> See 8 U.S. Const. art. VI; see also RJN Ex. 1 (Chino Valley complaint raising state law 9 causes of action), Ex. 5 at 1-3 (guidance discusses only state law). Regardless, 10 Article III here requires Plaintiffs to have standing to sue at the time of filing and 11 not in some hypothetical future. Peace Ranch, LLC v. Bonta, __ F.4th __, No. 22-12 16063 *8 (9th Cir. Feb. 13, 2024).

13 Because Plaintiffs cannot trace any actual and concrete injury to any of the 14 Attorney General's alleged actions, they lack standing to sue and their claims 15 should be dismissed.

16 II. THE ATTORNEY GENERAL SHOULD BE DISMISSED AS A DEFENDANT
17 BECAUSE HE ENJOYS ELEVENTH AMENDMENT IMMUNITY FROM SUIT

18 Separate and apart from standing concerns, Plaintiffs' attempt to haul the 19 Attorney General into court is barred by the Eleventh Amendment because the 20 Attorney General does not have any direct connection to or responsibility for 21 enforcement of any policy or law directly challenged in this lawsuit.

22 The Eleventh Amendment generally bars federal lawsuits brought against a 23 state. "It does not, however, bar actions for prospective declaratory or injunctive 24 relief against state officers in their official capacities for their alleged violations of 25 federal law." Coal. to Defend Affirmative Action v. Brown, 674 F.3d 1128, 1134 26 (9th Cir. 2012) (citing Ex parte Young, 209 U.S. 123, 155-56 (1908)). For the Ex

27 <sup>4</sup> For this same reason, any future injury to Plaintiffs caused by EUSD's 28 hypothetical decision to defy a final judgment would not likely be redressed by granting them relief against the Attorney General. Contra ECF No. 42 at 32.

1 parte Young exception to apply, the official must have “some connection” with 2 enforcement of the challenged act. Ex parte Young, 209 U.S. at 157; Nat’l 3 Audubon Soc’y, Inc. v. Davis, 307 F.3d 835, 847 (9th Cir. 2002) (finding action for 4 injunctive and declaratory relief against California Governor and Secretary of 5 Resources barred by Eleventh Amendment “as there is no showing that they have 6 the requisite enforcement connection” to challenged ballot proposition). Without 7 such a connection, suit against an official “would be equivalent to suit against the 8 state and would violate the Eleventh Amendment.” Southern Pac. Transp. Co. v.
9 Brown, 651 F.2d 613, 615 (9th Cir. 1980).

10 The nexus required to overcome Eleventh Amendment immunity “must be 11 fairly direct; a generalized duty to enforce state law or general supervisory power 12 over the persons responsible for enforcing the challenged provision will not subject 13 an official to suit.” Snoeck v. Brussa, 153 F.3d 984, 986 (9th Cir. 1998) (quoting 14 Los Angeles Cnty. Bar Ass’n v. Eu, 979 F.2d 697, 704 (9th Cir. 1992). The relevant 15 inquiry then is “whether a named state official has direct authority and practical 16 ability to enforce the challenged statute.” Nat’l Audubon Soc’y, 307 F.3d at 846.

17 Despite bending over backwards to shoehorn the Attorney General into their 18 existing legal claims, Plaintiffs have failed to identify any direct connection 19 between the Attorney General and an enforceable state law or policy actually at 20 issue in this case. That is because—as Plaintiffs themselves maintain—this case 21 remains at its core a local dispute between EUSD and Plaintiffs over the scope of 22 EUSD’s Policy, which is not required by any state law enforced by the Attorney 23 General. See FAC ¶ 219 (reiterating that the Policy “is not required by any 24 provision in California law” and that “[t]his lawsuit concerns solely whether 25 EUSD’s own Parental Exclusion Policies violate the Constitution”).

26 Again, the only state “policy” identified in Plaintiffs’ complaint is the 27 California Department of Education 2016 legal alert and accompanying FAQs page.
28 But the California Department of Education issued the FAQ guidance, not the 1 Attorney General. Moreover, Plaintiffs and all the State defendants agree that this 2 guidance is non-binding, as a matter of undisputed state law. See Cal. Educ. Code 3 § 33308.5 (all Department of Education guidance is non-binding); FAC ¶¶ 131, 4 192, 221; ECF No. 53 at 10. The Attorney General has no enforcement power over 5 any non-binding guidance, which is, by definition, not enforceable law. See FAC ¶

6 192 (“This type of Legal Advisory or FAQ page is not a formal agency
7 interpretation subject to any judicial deference. See Am. Nurses Assn. v. Torlakson, 8 57 Cal. 4th 570, 588 (2013).”)

9 Plaintiffs nonetheless try to have it both ways, conceding on the one hand that 10 the guidance is non-binding while on the other hand alleging that Defendant 11 Attorney General has enforced it in the Chino Valley matter. FAC ¶ 247 (alleging 12 the Attorney General “is currently suing another school district for not following 13 the State’s 2016 Legal Advisory and FAQs on gender identity”); see id. ¶ 241 14 (alleging the complaint in Chino Valley “specifically refers to” the guidance). As 15 discussed above, any allegation that the Attorney General has prosecuted a school 16 district for failing to follow this guidance is demonstrably false on its face, and 17 should be disregarded. See FAC ¶ 240; RJN Ex. 1 at ¶¶ 37, 109-129. Again, any 18 allegation or inference that this guidance is binding erroneously presumes that there 19 is only one way to follow state law and that all other policies violate it.

20 Because the Attorney General does not have a direct connection to or 21 enforcement responsibility over any challenged law at issue in this lawsuit, he 22 enjoys Eleventh Amendment immunity and should be dismissed from suit.

23 CONCLUSION

24 For the reasons set forth above, Plaintiffs have failed to satisfy the 25 requirements for Article III injury against Attorney General Bonta, who also enjoys 26 Eleventh Amendment immunity from suit. As a result, Attorney General Bonta 27 should be dismissed as a Defendant from this lawsuit.
